MR. DIEKROEGER

Mr. Diekroeger came to Iola High School after Mrs. Wrolstad, our former commercial teacher, left us. His position includes that of teaching shorthand, bookkeeping, typing, and supervising the Hilltopper.

Class History

It was back in August 1946 when 34 green freshmen "climbed up the hill" to start their four years of study in Iola High School. After a few days Elsie Lewison and Eleanor Klepps joined our class thus bringing our enrollment to 36. During the year Joan Davis and Martin Beyersdorf left us.

As usual we received our traditional welcome, better known as "initiation." The party was held on September 7, at which each of us performed our stunts and were treated to a lunch.

Our teachers during our freshman year were: Mr. Mork--principal and General Business, Miss Cleaves--English, Mr. Krienke--science, Mrs. Knutson--citizenship, Mr. Peterson--commercial and band director, Mrs. Mortenson--vocal.

As we started our sophomore year we found Delores Hanson, Kermit Taylor, Durane Roloff, Edwin Carley and Eleanor Klepps had left us, but we gained two new members--Dorothy Austin and Frances Heald. During the year Irma Grauvunder left us.

All the teachers were the same as our freshman year except Mr. Kitze had replaced Mr. Mork as principal, Mr. Peterson was replaced by Mrs. Wrolstad in commercial work and by Mr. Weber as band director. Due to illness Mr. Weber was later replaced by Mrs. Weiler.

When we started our junior year we found Sally Brekke, Harold Zellmer, Francis Heald and Marion Mickelson had left us. We now had the small total of 26. During this year Donna Fietzer and Lyle Peschke left us.

The biggest event of our junior year was the Prom which was held in honor of the Senior class on April 22, 1949. The theme song was "Underneath the Arches" and the music was furnished by Duke Janda and his Orchestra. The gym was decorated with pink, nile green, and white streamers. The theme was carried out with an arch effect. The king, Donald Olson, and his queen, Elsie Lewison, led the grand march. The attendants were June Roe, Charlotte Aronson, and Lois Morrison.

Our Junior class play, "Girls are Like That", was presented on February 3, 1949. Those in the cast were Shirley Bergen, Charlotte Aronson, Mildred Narlock, Doris Solberg, June Roe, Shirley Winkler, Sid Ellingson, David Nelson, Arlo Olson, and Elsie Lewison.

We started out in our senior year with an enrollment of 27 but during the year Luella Georgeson and Bonnie Schmidt left us bringing our total to 25.

As our senior year draws to a close we look back on the pleasant memories of our four years spent in Iola High School.

CLASS WILL

The senior class of 1950 was gathered together to make out their last will and testament. Each one had been told to have something to give to the undergraduates as a token of their esteem. The first one to volunteer after a long, long wait was cute little June Roe, who offered to give her dimples to Betty Peschke, since Betty already had some and would probably like some more. Now Russell Kolden raised his hand, saying that if June wasn't scared of being one of the first to will something, he sure wasn't, and said he would will his dancing ability to Russell Bergen. David Nelson's voice sounded next with his offer to give his old Congressional Records to Margie Schmidt--he hoped that she would be able to get through at least ONE of them. There was a short silence and then Donald Dineen clicked his fingers and exclaimed that he was willing to give his ability for cracking such timely little wisecracks to LaVern Olson. Donald Olson said Joan Voie could have his "Al Jolson" voice. Avis Knutson spoke up next by offering her "blue" Mondays to Marilyn Wright--and then Elsie said she'd leave her cheerleading ability with Betty Jones. Arlo Olson said he was willing to leave his "I Love You" notes to Billy Smith, provided Billy use them sparingly. Then Dorothy Austin raised her voice above the hubbub of the room and said she was leaving all the days of school she missed to David Grove, hoping he would have as much fun as she did. Her pal, Phyllis Beyer said she was going to give her studying ability to Walter Byersdorf. Shirley Winkler, Lila Aasen and Mildred Narlock all got together and decided on Shirley's getting rid of her giggles by giving them to Jean Thompson, Lila willing her daintiness to Ronnie Tschurwald, and Millie giving her good times up north to Dorothy Knutson. Albert Weinmann spoke up next, and said he was willing his curly hair to Gwen Dain and added that he hoped she would appreciate it. Eugene Nassen said he was willing his jealousy to Donny Mork because he didn't need it anymore. Sid Ellingson gave all the seniors a big smile and said he would give his ability to flirt to Jerome Strand. Lois Morrison rose and said sweetly that she couldn't will anything because she had already given it to Eugene. Then Doris Solberg spoke right up and said she was going to give her speaking ability to Joan Winkler. Next, Art Thompson raised a hand most sorrowfully and said he would give his Ford to anyone who felt they could keep it going. Stanley Severson offered all his persistence to Dick Hungerford with best wishes. Donna Forseth stood up very shyly, and said she would give some of her shyness to Nancy Smith. After Donna sat down, Shirley Bergen and Charlotte Aronson said they were willing to give their duet-ability to Iris Louison and Lee Meyers. Joyce McKellips wills her friendly smile to Gordon Flaata, and Gene Hermanson willed his ability to get along with Mrs. Knutson to little Hank Solberg.

The next thing this happy bunch of seniors did, was decide on what to will the teachers. This is the result: To Miss Cleaves, they left a big garbage can to throw all the old love magazines away in. Miss Hines was willed a jet plane so she could get down to Milwaukee so much quicker, and a new laboratory and electric dishwasher were to be given to Mr. Krienke. To Mr. Deikroeger, they left their shorthand and bookkeeping books in the fond hope that maybe HE could decipher them! The seniors decided that a cover was to be given Mr. Whiting since so many ping-pong balls had nearly been dissolved after landing in the open acid jar. Mr. Bizer was willed all the excuse slips they forgot to hand in. Mr. Stephan was left some basketball players like Claude, Russ, Don, and Ubbie. Mrs. Testin was willed all the blue notes the band hit during the music Tournament and Mrs. Knutson was willed another student with as much talkativeness as Gene Hermanson.

THE END

CLASS PROPHECY

It is the year of 1960. All the seniors are out in the world and here is a check on what they are doing in case you are beginning to wonder if anything possibly COULD happen to our happy little class.

June Roe has now opened an old maid's home with Elsie Lewison, just like they always said they would. June spends her spare time playing solo cornet with the Cities Service Band of America. She stopped the show last week with her playing of "The Flight of the Bumblebee."

Russell Kolden is employed as a janitor in the old maid's home. He likes it there.

Donald Olson has replaced George Mikan as a center for the Minn. Lakers--he's making just as good a record, too.

David Nelson just turned professional undertaker. Business is dead.

Phyllis Beyer is a Democrat politician. Last we heard she was eyeing the presidency.

Gene Hermanson is a professional bouncer at New York's Stork Club.

Lila Aasen is head nurse at the hospital just constructed across from the Northland Ballroom.

Donald Dineen is fighting a law suit against Red Skeleton. Red claims Claude stole a joke.

Eugene Nassen is busily training his eight giggling daughters to become chorus girls in the Zeigfield Follies.

Lois Morrison has become a beautician and boy! Is she busy fixing the hair of her eight daughters.

Art Thompson is currently the chauffeur for the Nassen family.

Elsie Lewison is cheerleading for the old maid's home basketball team. She's also a nurse there.

Junior Severson had an airplane crash while on the planet of Mars. He got married and settled up there.

Donna Forseth is teaching shorthand at the new prep school up at Blue Goose.

Avis Knutson just made fifty million dollars on her latest record, "I Won't Go Hunting With You, Jake."

Arlo Olson is replacing Stan Heath as quarterback for the Green Bay Packers.

Mildred Narlock is teaching Home Ec. in the Marion High School. As a pastime she is chasing a professional basketball player.

Albert Weinmann has grown some and is now the world's tallest man.

Dorothy Austin--Let's see, she must have married by this time!

Sidney Ellingson is still a bachelor at 28 but he has a rosy future before him--he hopes.

Shirley Winkler is busy raising 2,000 kids and 4 chickens. She used to teach school in a mental institution.

Charlotte Aronson is an actress in Hollywood. Her favorite escort is Butch Jenkins.

Shirley Bergen is teaching school in Hollywood--trying to convince the kids she isn't as dumb as she looks. During the summer months she is Charlotte's private secretary.

Joyce McKellips is happily married.

Doris Solberg is a great orator, touring the country, and lecturing on "The World Today."

BAND NEWS

The Iola High School Band composed of 36 members made it's first appearance of the year at the Carnival, given on October 28, 1949 under the direction of Mrs. Testin.

On December 19, 1949 the band and mixed chorus presented a Tableau depicting the Christmas Story.

During basketball season the "Pep Band" played some numbers at each home game.

The annual spring concert was presented on April 3, 1950.

The following received star ratings for solos and ensembles qualifying them to enter the state tournament at Madison on May 6: June Roe, David Nelson, Shirley Bergen, Charlotte Aronson, Anna Olson, Ronald Wennesburg, and Jeanette Leean.

SNAPS

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The senior class presented it's class play, "Spring Fever," by Glenn Hughes, on May 19, 1950.

The Cast of Characters:

Howard Brant, a senior at Brookfield College--Sidney Ellingson

Ed Burns, a chemistry student--Donald Dineen

Vic Lewis, an art student--David Nelson

Lou Herron, a journalism student--Shirley Bergen

Mrs. Spangler, the landlady--Doris Solberg

Anne Purcell, Howard's heart interest--Charlotte Aronson

Vivian George, Vic's heart interest--Mildred Narlock

Henry Purcell, Anne's father, a rich manufacturer--Albert Weinmann

Phoebe Purcell, Anne's mother--Elsie Lewison

Maude Corey, Howard's spinster aunt from California--June Roe

Professor Virgil Bean, of the zoology department--Donald Olson

Dr. Dixon, President of Brookfield College--Russell Kolden

SYNOPSIS OF PLAY

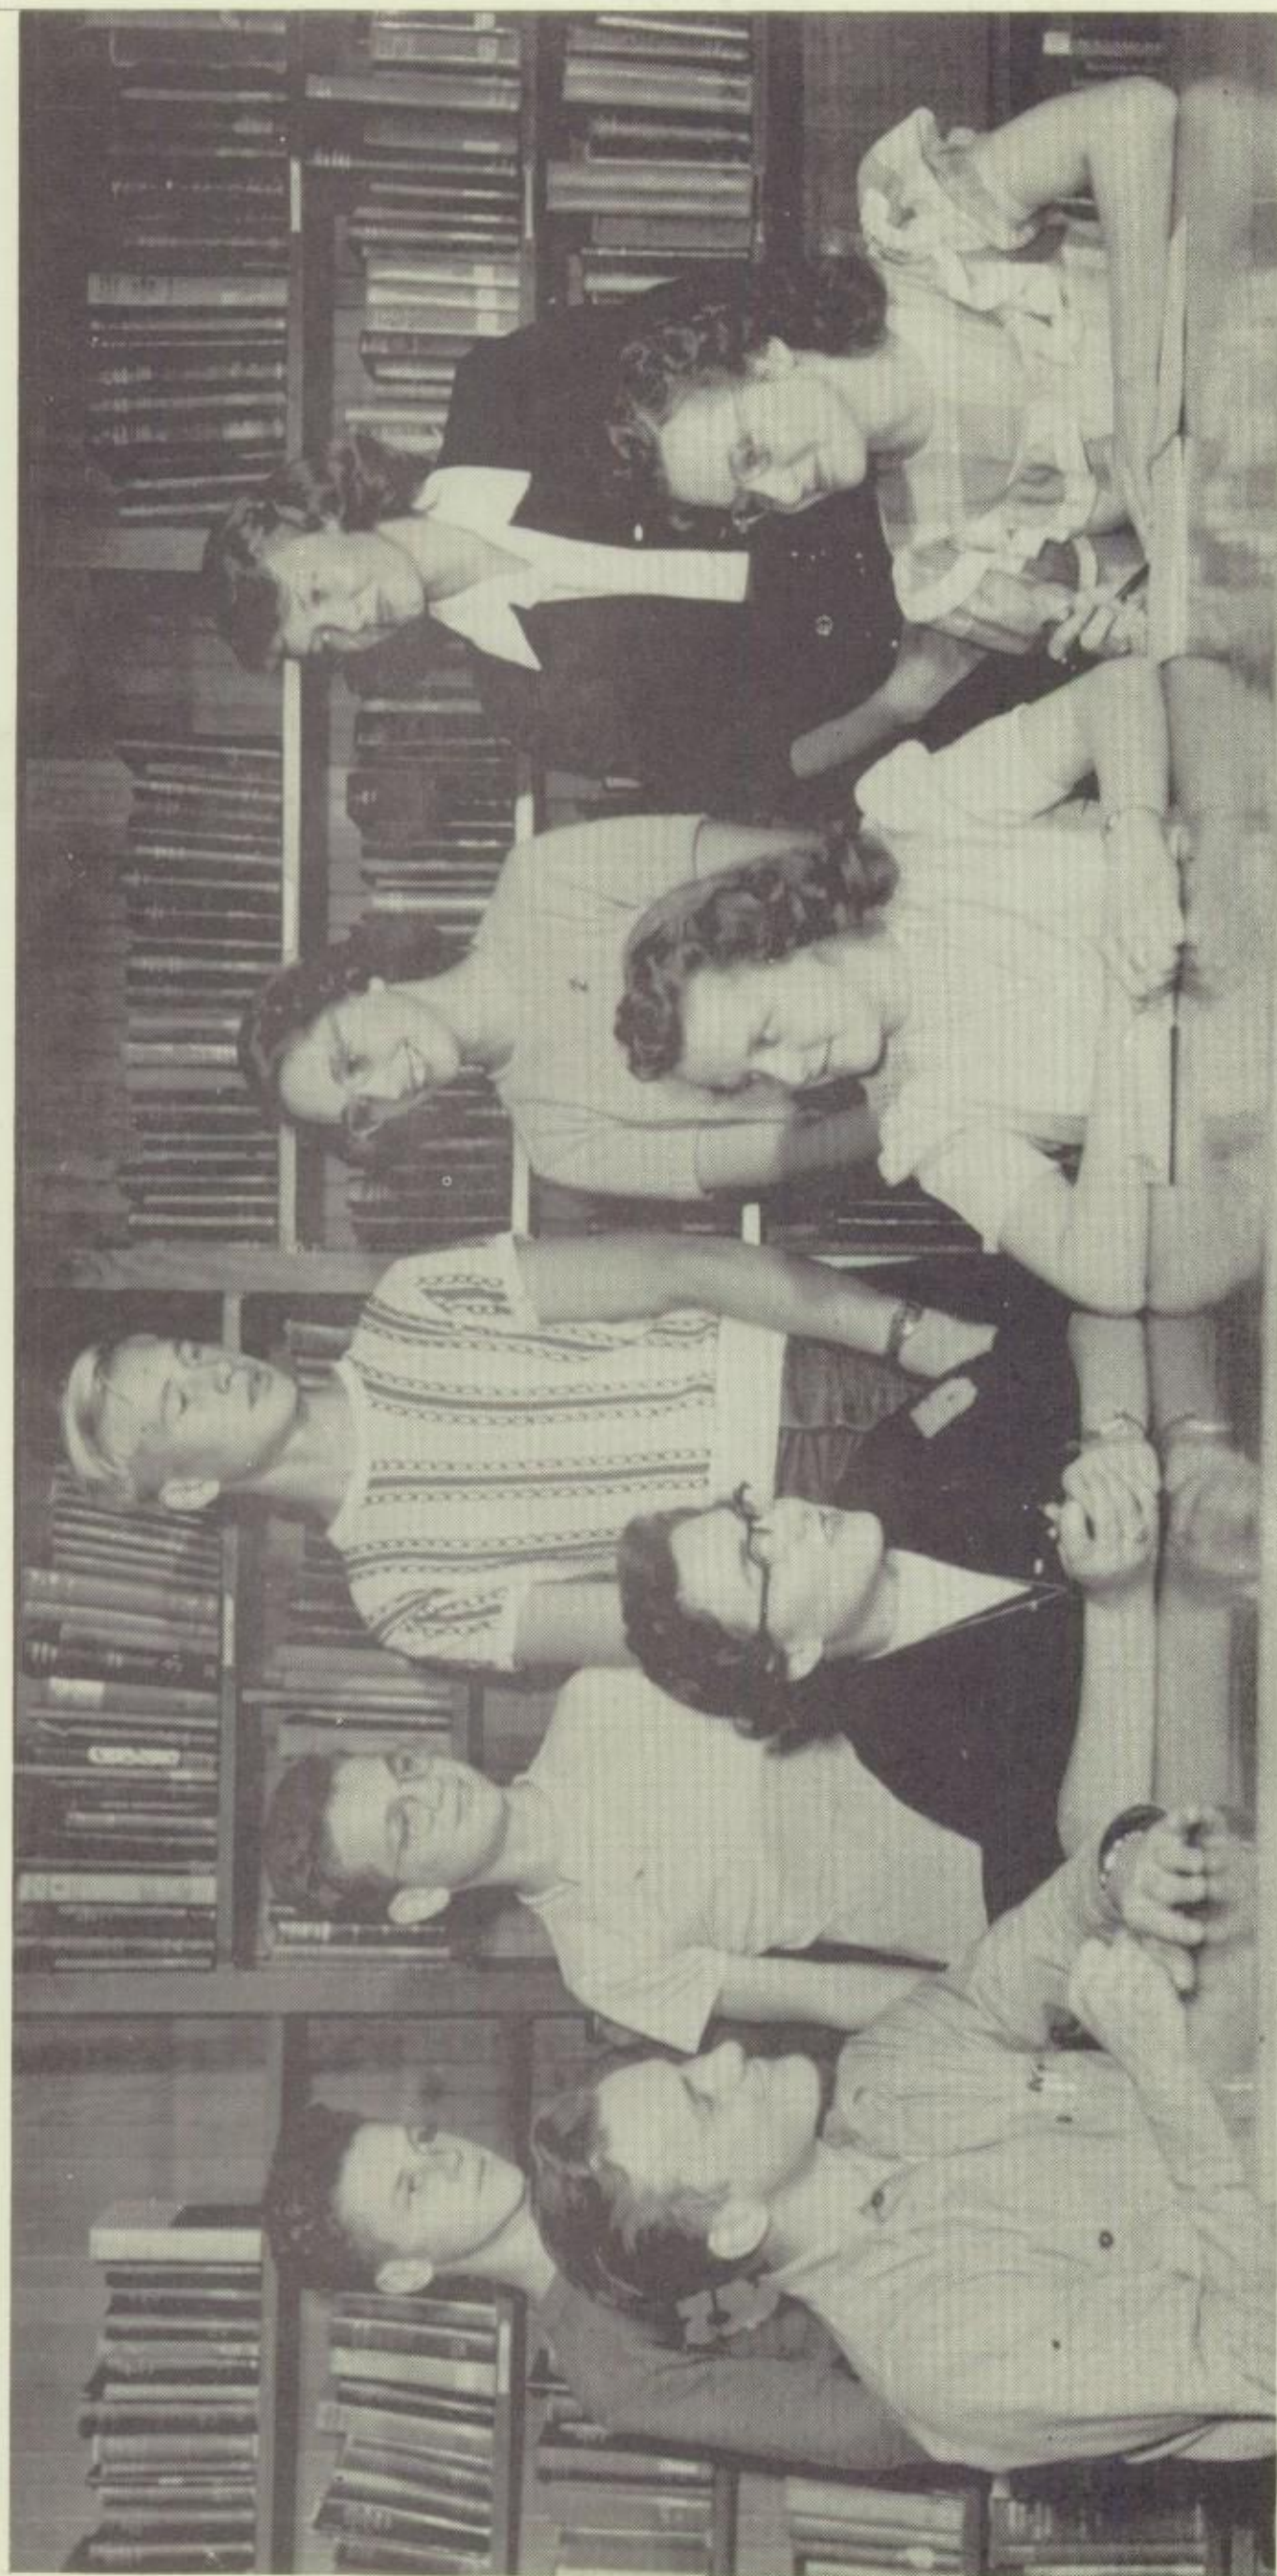

While Ed is experimenting with his substitute for dynamite, and Vic sets up his easel and brushes, Howard Brant types frantically at his zoology term paper. He will graduate the next day if he gets the paper in on time. But to add to his difficulty, all the graduation turmoil and visitors do not help his powers of concentration.

The first upheaval occurs when Mr. Purcell arrives. Forgetting that they had promised him a room in the house, the boys mistake him for an eccentric artist's model whom Vic is expecting. Having been warned that the man may be somewhat erratic, they find it necessary to gag and tie Mr. Purcell to make him pose. When released, Mr. Purcell not only withdraws himself from the scene, in fury, but withdraws also his offer to present a new science building to the college.

Another crisis occurs when Howard's Aunt Maude arrives and discovers that he has not passed his zoology course. Posing as a famous zoologist, Aunt Maude meets Professor Bean and begins her campaign to get Howard out of college. With this sort of co-operation, the young people decide to put on an act to get Mr. Purcell to renew his offer of a new science building.

One emergency after another arises until, with one final explosion, the curtains close.... Obviously there is nothing lethargic about this kind of spring fever. If you haven't had your attack of the disease yet, you've missed part of your education.
